2 INDEPENDENT CLAIM 1

2.1 The present application does not meet the requirements of PCT Article 33(1) because the subject matter of claim 1 is not novel within the meaning of PCT Article 33(2).

Document D1 (see column 26, lines 44-51, figure 1, 9, 10, 12) discloses (the references between parentheses relate to this document):

pixels (24), where the pixels can be actuated individually or in groups using actuation electronics, and where the display apparatus has a first two-dimensional substrate (52), characterized in that the first two-dimensional substrate has, on a first surface, fastening elements which project, at least in sections, from the first surface (see column 26, line 49) for the purpose of detachably fixing the display apparatus on a carrier device through the interaction of the fastening elements on the first two-dimensional substrate with the carrier device.

2.2 Reference is made to the fact that the subject matter according to claim 1 is also otherwise not novel over the disclosure of each document D2 - D5 cited in the international search report.

3 DEPENDENT CLAIMS 2, 3, 5-16

Claims 2, 3, 5-16 do not contain any features which, in combination with the features of any claim to which they refer, meet the PCT requirements for novelty and inventive step.

4 It is currently not possible to tell what part of the application might form the basis of a novel, grantable claim. Should the applicant nevertheless consider an individual subject matter to be novel and inventive then he should submit an independent claim which relates to this subject matter and which is drafted in accordance with PCT Rule 6.3 (b).

Box No. VII Certain defects in the international application

The following defects in the form or contents of the international application have been noted:

- 1 To meet the requirements of PCT Rule 5.1 (a) (ii), the description needs to cite documents D1-D5; their relevant content should be briefly outlined. The applicant should make it clear in the description what features of the subject matter of independent claim 1 are already known from documents D1-D5.

- 2 When submitting amended claims, the applicant should bring the description into line with the amended claims at the same time. When revising the application, particularly the introductory part and the presentation of the problem or the advantages of the invention, it should be ensured that its subject matter does not go beyond the content of the application in the originally submitted version (PCT Article 34(2) (b)).

WRITTEN OPINION OF THE
INTERNATIONAL SEARCHING AUTHORITY

PCT/EP2005/003106

Box No. VIII Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

- 1 The expression "particularly" in claims 2, 6, 10, 14 does not restrict the scope of protection of the patent claims. The features which come after such an expression can be considered entirely optional (PCT Guidelines S-IV, 5.40). These features can be retained as the subject matter of a new dependent claim.

- 2 Some of the features in apparatus claims 5, 12, 13, 15 relate to a method for producing the apparatus and not to the definition of the apparatus on the basis of its technical features. The intended restrictions are therefore not clear from the claim, contrary to the requirements of PCT Article 6.
